

YOUNG VAGABOND IS ARRESTED FOR MASHING

Louis Conboy, who has traveled almost all over the world proposed to young girl that she elope with him.

Accused of mashing and robbing girls, Louis Conboy, a young boy of 14 years old, a glib talker by profession, was arrested yesterday at George R. Craig's office about this morning. Conboy was born yesterday evening at the office of Sheriff of Police McMillin, who when several complaints had been registered by parents of girls ranging in age from fourteen to seventeen, it being claimed that Conboy, a small stranger, had written notes to the girls and otherwise forced his advances upon them. Conboy's last masher reached a climax last night, standing outside of a motion picture theater, he handed a note to a girl as she was entering the playhouse, the note reading as follows:

"DEAR GIRL—Will you join me in a theatrical enterprise. I am about to understand. All you need is your next course. We will go away together and engage in theatrical work. Leave the rest to me. My name is Louis Conboy and I am seventeen years old."

Conboy, following the first note, Conboy dispatched a second note to the girl while she was in the theater, giving the follow up message by a small boy. The second note read:

"DEAR GIRL—Come to the front at my house, we must see you. A Friend."

Instead of coming to the front, the girl handed the note to a relative in the audience and Louis Conboy was soon accompanying a policeman to the station.

This morning Conboy, whom arrested before Judge Craig, was extremely penitent. He declared in a voice which trembled, that he was acting foolish when he wrote the notes and spoke to young girls with whom he was unacquainted.

"Just give me another chance, judge, and I'll be good. I want to work and if you let me go I'll do anything you want. I'll go to work, or leave town just as you say."

Questioned by the court, Conboy said his home was in Jersey City, New Jersey; that his father had been killed in a coal mining disaster in Pennsylvania in 1907; that his mother had come to see what had become of the body and that she never came back.

"Then I left home and have been running around ever since," said Conboy, finishing his story.

"Where did you come from to Albuquerque?" queried the court.

"From El Paso," replied Conboy.

"You were run out of El Paso, boy," repeated the sheriff.

"I admit it," Conboy said and walked down there and met me I had better get out of town, because I didn't have a job and if anyone happened down there he would have to bring it on me."

Conboy was remanded to jail and will be brought here prior to the dispensation of the Court McMillin. Conboy is currently a member of the city choir and will probably find church more to his liking in a larger place than Albuquerque. For two years this boy has been following the roads and I believe ought here to stay for the sake of the country."

PANHANDLERS WILL ARRIVE TONIGHT FOR SERIES

Amarillo Aggregation Confident That Texas Can Whip New Mexico on the Baseball Diamond Three Times.

Confident they can win three straight games from the Albuquerquians, the Amarillo baseball club will arrive at midnight tonight from the Panhandle of Texas. The first of the series of three games will be played on Tuesday night diamond at 3:45 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Saturday game is being held up until a quarter to 4 in order to accommodate those who would not be able to attend if play were to begin at 3 o'clock. The Sunday and Monday games will begin at the regular hour o'clock. Admission to all the games will be 25 cents to the quarter stretch and 25 additional for those who wish to go into the grandstand. Automobiles who desire to remain in their machines and witness the game from the race track in near the side lines of the diamond will be charged 25 cents each at the gate and 25 cents additional for the privilege of occupying a vantage point denied to those who do not travel in motors and carriages. Motorists remaining within the grandstand enclosure, however, will be taxed only the 25 cents general admission.

The three games with Amarillo promise to furnish plenty of interesting material. Amarillo has three pitchers, Adams, Barnard and James, while Albuquerque will have Weeks and McGrath. Weeks will pitch tomorrow and Monday. McGrath will work Sunday.

Judge Ira A. Abbott, who has been sitting on the supreme bench in Santa Fe, as an associate justice of the supreme court for the last two weeks, will return to Albuquerque tonight and will be in chambers tomorrow ready to consider such business as may properly come before the court.
